MAKES APPEAL FOR CLEMENCY

Darrow Would Save Slayers from the Gallows.

PUBLIC PREJUDICED, HE SAYS

Chief Counsel For the Defense in the Leopold-Loeb Case Blames "Misguided Youth" For the Murder of Young Robert Franks—Asks That the Slayers Be Permanently Isolated.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—Clarence S. Darrow made a strong appeal to Chief Justice John R. Caverly to save Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb from execution for the murder of young Robert Franks.

Darrow blamed "misguided youth" for the crime. He said:

"Your honor, anxiety over this case has not been due to the facts of this case alone, but to the undue publicity that has been given this case, largely through the newspapers. The front pages of the newspapers of Chicago have regaled the people with all sorts of stories about the case until almost every person has formed an opinion. The result of all this is that many people are not concerned in the kind of punishment handed out. All they think of is death."

Darrow declared the defense had done all it could to gain the confidence of the public. "We promised the public that no excessive amount of money would be used in this case by lawyers and psychiatrists, and we have faithfully kept that promise," he said, explaining that the defense attorneys are being paid according to the state alienists and that the lawyers' fees would be fixed by the bar association. "If we fail it will not be for lack of money, but on account of money," Darrow cried, smashing his right fist on the bench. "Poverty is sometimes fortunate and it would be fortunate in this case. We are here with the lives of two boys imperiled—with the public aroused. And for what? Because their parents have money."

"Nowhere in the records of Illinois can we find a human being under the age of 23 or 30 who has been sentenced to death after pleading guilty. I have heard nothing during the last month but the cry of blood. I have felt nothing from the state's attorney's office but the breath of hate. The things they have preached would be a disgrace to a savage race."

Attorney Darrow then read from ancient court decisions, pointing out a case in which a 13-year-old girl was burned at the stake, "because she didn't say please to her mistress. How a case like that must please Doctor Crowe," placing a sarcastic emphasis on the Doctor Crowe (the state's attorney).

Turning his attention to Assistant State's Attorney Joseph P. Savage, Darrow quoted him as saying, "We pleaded guilty because we were afraid to place our case before a jury." "That's true," Darrow said, mournfully shaking his shaggy head. "That's true. Both the attorneys and families of these two boys realize that Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb are unfit to mingle in society. We want them permanently isolated. But, your honor, we are asking this court to save their lives—and that is the least and the most that a judge can do."

Darrow's appeal at times proved too much for the slayers' self-control. When he pictured disgrace to the families, the grief of mothers, the sorrow of fathers, the blasted hopes for the boys themselves, Loeb flicked tears from his cheeks and Leopold stumbled from the courtroom with bowed head.

Error Responsible.

Columbus, Aug. 23.—Error, not fraud, was responsible for the failure of Oliver H. Griffin, general assembly candidate, to receive a single vote in Precinct F, Ward 17, at the unofficial tabulation of primary returns. Examination of tally sheets by board of elections officials shows Griffin received 21 votes in that precinct. Griffin ran sixth in the Republican legislative race, 262 votes "short" of being nominated. He had threatened to demand a recount on the ground fraud had been perpetrated.

Tunney to Meet Gibbons.

LEGAL BATTLE LOOMS

Laws of Ohio to Be Matched Against Cult's Teachings.

Pomeroy, O., Aug. 23.—County Prosecutor L. C. Davis is prepared to match the laws of Ohio against the teachings and practices of Rev. Thomas Spear, pastor of the Pentecostal Holiness church, and 42 members of his congregation. The pastor and his followers are at liberty under bond to appear in court next week to answer charges of contributing to the delinquency of the young people of the church. Davis charges their services are "emotional orgies" and that the young people of the congregation work themselves into a frenzy, often shimmying until they drop from exhaustion to the tune of ragtime hymns. Rev. Spear declared he is merely following the Scriptures—that "a little child shall lead them," and that he will bring his Bible into court in an attempt to clear himself and his followers of the charges against them.

BIG GAS MERGER IS REPORTED

Ohio Fuel Supply Company Said to Be Involved.

ASSETS EXCEED $80,000,000

Rumored Consolidation Affects Pittsburgh Gas Interests and Ohio Fuel Supply Company, Which Controls Three Producing and Distributing Agencies—Merger an Alleged Answer to Demand For Lower Rate.

Columbus, Aug. 23.—Reports are current here of a big merger of Pittsburgh gas interests with the Ohio Fuel Supply company, which controls Columbus' natural gas supply.

It is said the merger will consolidate the Manufacturers' Light, Heat and Power company, the Union Gas and Fuel company of Pittsburgh and the Ohio Fuel Supply company of Pittsburgh and Columbus. The deal will throw together assets of $85,000,000 it was intimated.

The Ohio Fuel Supply company controls the Ohio Fuel Gas company, the Columbus Gas and Fuel company and the Federal Gas and Fuel company, the producing and distributing agencies which furnish the gas supply for this city. Control of the distributing companies was acquired by the Ohio Fuel Supply company after a series of transfers and mergers in which the local holdings were purchased from the Pure Oil company, of which they originally were subsidiaries.

The merger is believed here to be the local gas company's answer to the contention of Columbus city council that gas should be sold at a price giving a fair return on the value of property used in the service. At several times during the negotiations for a gas rate before city council, gas company officials intimated they would sell their gas elsewhere if Columbus would not pay the required price, regardless of the return made possible by that rate.

Plausibility of the theory that the Ohio Fuel Supply company may try to divert its gas away from Columbus is strengthened by the fact that gas-producing territory of these three companies and their main lines are located in Ohio and West Virginia, within a short distance of each other. The Manufacturers' Light and Heat company raised its price for gas in the Pittsburgh district to 60 cents per 1,000 last year. This is substantially the rate the local gas companies are asking in Columbus. Council recently passed an ordinance fixing the rate at 40 cents.

DAVIS CONDEMNS THE KU KLUX KLAN

He Requests President Coolidge to Do Likewise.

Sea Girl, N. J., Aug. 23.—John W. Davis, Democratic nominee for president, condemned the Ku Klux Klan in a speech here.

At the same time he challenged President Coolidge to do likewise and thereby remove the issue as a topic for political debate. Davis said:

"Whenever any organization, no matter what it chooses to be called—whether Ku Klux Klan or by any other name—raises the standard of racial or religious prejudices, or attempts to make racial origin or religious belief a test of fitness for public office, it does violence to the spirit of American institutions and must be condemned by all those who believe as I do in American ideals."

"This matter must not be permitted to divert attention of the public from vital questions now before them. I venture, therefore, to express the hope that the nominee of the Republican party will see fit by some explicit declaration to join in entirely removing this topic from the field of political debate."

Mr. Davis also challenged President Coolidge to accept responsibility for the acts of the Republican administration and its officials. "What is honesty in government?" he asked. "Honesty in the handling of the public funds and the public property, of course. But it is something more. It is candor and fair dealing and impartiality and the transaction of the public business in the open, in broad day-

ITALIAN FLIER LOST IN FOG

American Cruisers Hunting for Missing Aviator.

STARTED WITH YANKEE AIRMEN

Fatigue of Latter Made It Inadvisable For Them to Continue to Ivigtut, the Next Stop on the Journey Through Greenland—Full Day's Layover Contemplated at Ivigtut Before the Jump to Labrador.

London, Aug. 23.—Fog halted the search for Lieutenant Locatelli, the missing Italian aviator, according to radio messages from the American cruisers in Greenland water.

Locatelli, flying from Italy to New York, caught up with the American flyers, Lieutenants Smith and Nelson, at Reykjavik, Iceland, and was invited to join them in the remainder of the journey.

Smith and Nelson arrived at Frederiksdaal, Greenland, Thursday evening, having completed their 825-mile hop from Reykjavik in a little less than 12 hours of continuous flying. There was no definite word from Frederiksdaal indicating that Lieutenant Locatelli had landed, and the order from Admiral Magruder that the American cruisers begin a search for the Italian was the first official word that he is missing. The fatigue of the flyers, coupled with the delay in their arrival, caused by the northeasterly wind that fanned their machines, made it inadvisable for them to continue to Ivigtut, the next stop on their journey and the point Lieutenant Smith wished to reach if weather conditions and flying time had permitted.

The plan of Lieutenant Smith was to continue the flight with the short jump to Ivigtut, due north from Frederiksdaal, where a full day's layover is contemplated for overhauling the machines preliminary to spanning the 572 miles from Ivigtut to Indian Harbor, Labrador.

Ivigtut is one of the most interesting settlements in the northern part of the world—the settlement established by Erik back in 983 A. D. After its establishment it was maintained for several centuries by Norwegian colonists. When the colony was established substantial homes were built, 15 churches were formed and a monastery and nunnery were started. The flyers missed the famed Greenland's "icy mountains" by taking the sea route around the island.

Applications For Bonus Flooding Two Departments.

Washington, Aug. 23.—Applications for the soldiers' bonus are flooding into the war and navy departments at a rate of more than 15,000 a day. Many of the applications are accompanied by complicated legal questions, which in many cases must be reviewed by the judge advocate generals of each department and subsequently passed upon by Secretary of War Weeks or Secretary of Navy Wilbur. Many of these questions arise from the wording of the adjusted compensation act in defining "overseas service."

The law specifies that the term means service on shore in Europe or Asia, exclusive of China, Japan and the Philippine islands, and service afloat, not on receiving ships. This has led veterans who served in the Panama canal zone and other places not specifically mentioned to inquire whether they are entitled to the 25 cents a day additional which goes with each day of overseas service.

Attempts to Clear Girl.

St. Joseph, Mich., Aug. 23.—Changing his reported confession of the killing of Cora Raber on the witness stand, Emil Zupke sought to clear his sweetheart, Florence McKinney, 19, his alleged accomplice, testifying he told her he was going to "fix Cora so she won't bother me any more." Zupke previously is said to have confessed he told the girl plainly that he was going to kill his former sweetheart.

QUEEN OF STATE FAIR

Norwalk Woman Declared Winner of Statewide Contest.

Columbus, Aug. 23.—It was officially announced that Mrs. C. F. Wickham, Jr., of Norwalk, will be Ohio's state fair queen. She has been declared winner of the statewide popularity contest, which closed Aug. 20, and as queen will come to Columbus Monday and remain through state fair week as the guest of the fair management. Second honors were won by Miss Mary Latta of Granville, third by Miss Miriam A. Reed of Radnor; fourth by Miss Abbie Reeves of Gallipolis, and fifth by Miss Ursula Ross of Lancaster.

Mrs. Wickham will be the center of many events during fair week. On Columbus day, Monday, she will have an important part in the program, but the big event will come Wednesday at her official coronation, with appropriate and elaborate ceremonies.

As a "court for the queen" the second, third, fourth and fifth highest in the popularity contest will be brought to Columbus Wednesday at expense of the fair management.

Defeat of White.

Columbus, Aug. 23.—According to the American Issue, official organ of the Anti-Saloon league, "an over abundance of dry candidates" is the reason James A. White was defeated in the race for the Republican nomination for governor. The paper denies that the defeat of White was a blow to the cause of prohibition and says that White was no more the candidate of the league than were half a dozen other candidates. "As an organization, the league did nothing to promote Mr. White's candidacy," the issue says.

RAPS NEW GAS RATE

Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce Says It Should Be Rejected.

Cincinnati, Aug. 23.—In a letter to the city council the board of directors of the Cincinnati chamber of commerce declared that the increased gas rate demanded by the Union Gas and Electric company is unjustified and should be rejected. Its reasons were that the property valuation of the gas company is not known, and that the Columbia Gas company, which supplies the local company with gas, and which, it was said, proposed to charge a wholesale rate of 45 cents per 1,000, was found to be practically identical with the local distributor. The investigator, Professor William D. Ennis, says the companies refused in writing to permit him to investigate their affairs, and holds the Columbia Gas company should charge only 31.5 instead of their present 35 per 1,000.

Man's Body Found In Box.

New York, Aug. 23.—A mutilated body, which police believed to be that of Aaron J. Graff, prominent radio manufacturer, who disappeared Aug. 1, was found in a long metal box in the cellar of the building where Graff had his factory. Near the box police found an ax and a saw in such condition as to indicate these weapons had been used to mutilate the body.

HARTMAN THEATER

This year's production of the Al. G. Field minstrel show, the 38th annual edition, which opens at the Hartman theater, Columbus, Monday, August 25, and remains thruout fair week, is the last word in minstrel entertainment. It is easily recognized as the fastest, most appealing and truly characteristic minstrel show on the American stage today. It is presented under the direction of Edward Conard present manager of the show. Al. G. Field minstrel show have always stood at the front and this year is no exception, the show is better than ever before.

Jack Richards again heads the cast of singers and minstrel lovers all over the country acclaim him as the most popular minstrel balladist. His role is exceedingly heavy in this production since the public consistently demand to hear more of him. Billy Church, the clear, bell-like tenor, also captivates his audiences. Five clever comedians are in the cast; Nick Hufford, Harry Frankel, Harry Shunk, Johnny Healy and Jack Kennedy and their efforts are easily worthy of the profession. To dance like Billy and Leo Doran is an art and their chorus of dancers is exceptionally nimble and well trained. As a female impersonator, Boni Mack keeps his audience guessing.

The opening scene of the show is on the deck of a pleasure yacht, sailing the seas and you can almost hear the waves lapping the sides of the boat, so real is the atmosphere. The second part changes to Holland and even the tulips danced to the rhythm of the enchanting music. Romance and adventure run high in the afterpiece, which takes place in Spain. In the finale in a cabaret in Spain, as well as at the opening, the entire company, including the orchestra, is on the stage.

Mail orders are being accepted at any time and seats are selling at the box office. The demand seems to indicate that the Field show will enjoy even greater popularity than it already has. Matinees are on Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Tailored Garters Latest —Match Tailored Suits

The loss of a garter once provoked the famous saying, "Honi soit qui mal y pense." If you were to lose one of the newest garters a gallant remark would not be needed to save the situation. Simply because the newest ones are not the frilly, personal looking affairs we have been used to seeing. They might be mistaken for a black wrist band or a fob.

When tailored suits came along, women decided that tailored garters were necessary to complete the severity of the outfit, so they evolved what is nothing more than a strap of elastic, much like the strap you used to hitch around your school books. Eyelets are stitched into the length of elastic and a small nickel buckle is used to fasten the garter in place.

When the "pep" goes out of the elastic, you merely pull the buckle to the next eyelet and your garters are good for a further stretch.

Women Demand Comfort When They Buy Shoes

The woman of 1924 is more than ever considering her physical comfort in the choice of her wardrobe, and particularly with regard to her shoes. They must conform to the lines of the foot, hug the instep and bend without breaking. Accordingly, she chooses shoes of kid leather, which, in addition to their flexibility and softness, are also more porous, allowing the foot to breathe. Thus, it is possible for the wearer to dance all evening without creating the burning, perspiring condition of the feet which so frequently results in painful corns and permanent callouses.

So, from the shops to their rack in the closet and thence to the ballroom floor, kid shoes find their way with increasing popularity, and both the modern woman and the modern man enjoy their combined advantages of style and comfort.—Kansas City Star.

Slave Bracelet Is Also Called the Love Link

The slave bracelet, the flexible bracelet of long open links, is also called the love link. It may be had in gold, sterling silver and platinum finish. A variation of these bracelets has large single stones in square flat settings and inch links of enamel or emblem to show distinction. Galathea bracelets have new interest when mounted with filigree and clasped with a stone. A unique set of four bangles alternates jet with old gold.

Although 60-inch chains are very smart a new length necklace called the collarette has made its appearance. Slightly longer than the choker, it outlines the neck more gracefully and drops a fringe or pendant. When the drop ornament is a medallion some houses term them amulets. Amulets have been worn since ancient times as a protecting power which will ward off evil.

Wool, Gossamer Weight Stockings, Latest Mode

Since silk stockings are taboo with sports dress, resourceful designers have brought out entirely new hosiery of different styles in light wool and cotton. It is a long time since any but old-fashioned plain black or white stockings have been seen. Aside from silk there have been only lisle—so harsh to some tender feet—or the heavy-ribbed woolen articles that have been affected by the athletic girl, who grained and bore them. The new sorts are of wool, gossamer weight, in fancily woven patterns, ribbed or with drop-stitch stripes; and of cotton, with a surface appearance like wool, and in a variety of colors and styles.

Church Gets Old Bell

The famous old bell brought around Cape Horn in the early '60s and used as a fire bell in General Allen's time at Vancouver barracks at Vancouver, Wash., has been converted into a church bell to call worshipers to the Norwegian Lutheran church in Vancouver. The bell being of careful casting is more musical than the ordinary ringer used in fire stations.

Capital's First Newspaper

The first newspaper published in what is now the city of Washington was the Times and Potomack Pocket. It started in February, 1789, the exact date being uncertain. The paper was delivered to subscribers in town by "carrier" at their houses, weekly, on Wednesday, and to those at a distance by the quickest conveyance.

Form of Baptism

Baptism in the Catholic church was originally by immersion. According to the Catholic Encyclopedia, immersion as a regular method of baptism prevailed until about the Twelfth century. In some places individual Catholic churches baptized by immersion until several hundred years later.

Three Ways

There are three ways to learn the value of a dollar. The first is to spend it and see what you'll get for it. The second is to earn it and see what you give for it. The third is to save it and yearn for the things it might buy if you were weak enough to spend it.—Boston Transcript.

HERRICK REFRIGERATORS

The Big Difference In Refrigerators

The main object of any refrigerator, of course, is the preservation of foods. The refrigerator that will keep foods in perfect condition longest is naturally the refrigerator you want—provided it doesn't increase your ice bills.

The Herrick answers those requirements with facts—not claims. And it does even more. It actually decreases your ice bills while giving you more effective food preservation.

And why? Simply because the Herrick is far more than an ice box—far more than a cold storage place. It is built on the scientifically demonstrated principle that more than merely cold air is necessary to keep foods in good condition for any great length of time.

Perhaps the biggest essentials to scientifically correct refrigeration are—

- No. 1. Circulation of cold dry air.
- No. 2. Effective Insulation.
- No. 3. Air-tight construction.

That the Herrick has these necessary essentials is a demonstrated fact.

Many proofs of the truth are visible even to the least informed purchaser. Others are hidden within the walls of the refrigerator, but nevertheless there, performing their functions so important to good health and economy.

NEW FRENCH "AUTO TANK" LIKES ANY ROAD

Here we have a new pleasure vehicle, invented by a Frenchman, that will tackle anything from New England hill roads to prairie gumbo without stopping. Neither snow, rain, mud, nor stones can stop its caterpillar treads.

COMPRESSION IS SERIOUS MATTER

(By ERWIN GREER, President Greer College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago.)

During our apprenticeship in the auto school, garage or breaking in our first car, each one of us has been commanded to go out and buy a can of compression. After a conscientious search and being passed from one mechanic to another some one suddenly spilled the beans. It was then that we discovered that a can of compression is similar to a left-handed monkey wrench. We laughed about it and then took on the next automobile boob.

And since the coming of the self-starter, engine compression might as well be in a can for all the average motorcar owner knows or cares. But the secret of the sweet-running engine is—compression.

Turn Over the Engine.

Try the compression of each cylinder by turning the engine over with the hand crank. If it is weak or if it varies in different cylinders, have the trouble repaired at once. Compression may leak past the piston rings; it may escape through a leaky valve, or ooze past a spark plug. There possibly may be a cracked cylinder, in which case you are totally "out of luck."

The piston rings may have turned so that the openings are all in line, or you may be using such a light oil that the engine does not get a tight compression seal. Oil when heated is very thin. In some cases patented piston rings will help eliminate the leakage. If the cylinder is worn oval there is no remedy except that of replacing it. Kerosene will help free the rings of carbon, but it is best to use it when you are ready to drain off the old crank-case oil.

Make sure that the spark plugs fit tightly and that they are provided with good asbestos gaskets. A cracked porcelain will allow compression to escape.

Look over the priming cups and see that they all fit tightly and stay closed.

Some of the Symptoms.

During compression the valves should be tightly closed. A broken spring or faulty adjustment will prevent their closing, and this will result in no compression at all, or, in the case of incorrect timing, the trouble will be noticeable as a lack of power in all cylinders. Carbon under the valves will prevent them from seating tightly. The remedy here is to keep the engine free from carbon, the valves clean and be sure that the timing of the valves and the tappet adjustment are as set down in your instruction book.

When an engine that is clean, properly lubricated and has its valves ground regularly shows a serious loss of power, the lack of proper compression may safely be ascribed to the piston rings having worked into line, or the cylinders having worn to a point where the pistons are unduly loose. With the modern type rings, the former is a rare fault nowadays, so that the cause is narrowed down to plain wear.

These are the chief causes of loss of compression. Watch the compression—it will save you money that otherwise you would give to the repair man.

Removing Studs

A device to remove studs without marring the threads can be made from a short piece of cold rolled steel. A portion on each side is filed flat to fit a wrench and it is drilled and threaded to fit the stud to be removed. The device is screwed onto the projecting end of the stud and a cap screw is threaded into the other end to jam the stud, which permits the removal of the stud when a wrench is applied to the flats of the tool.

Steel Block

Car owners who work at the bench seem to make a habit of using the vise as a block, when they are cutting off metal with a chisel. This is not good for the vise, and a square steel block, perhaps an inch thick, clamped to the bench, will give a satisfactory base for this work and save the vise.

Face and Fear Mark

Motorist in Crowd
Imagine a motorist out for a walk! You ought to be able to pick him out of a mob of pedestrians. For he acts and looks as different from the regular run of walkers as does the automobile he drives from the horse it tries to run down.

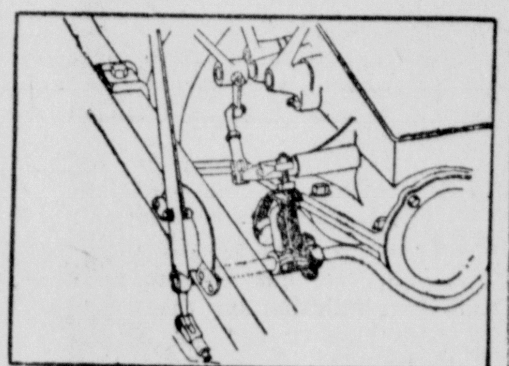

What changed him so? The helter-skelter of traffic, whistles of traffic cops, playing children, crossing pedestrians, stopping street cars, scotching busses, night lights, weird signaling, elusive parking spaces, speed traps—and a thousand and one other annoyances.

The result is he has developed a singular expression brought on by an entanglement of emotions, a psychological complex peculiar to auto driving. His features are drawn, taut, determined. His eyes are set and straining. Deep lines on either side of his mouth turn down. He is serious.

Safety and Controlling Apparatus Is Invented

The Scientific American in illustrating and describing a safety device for the clutch-controlling means of automobiles, the invention of J. Calcaterra, 141 East Twenty-third street, New York, says:

Two patents have been issued to this inventor on controlling and safety devices which insure the natural position of the clutch of planetary transmission gears, and without modification of the original construction. The safety device is swung to set position with the movement of the controller shaft to apply the brake, to be engaged by a screw rocking with the clutch lever, but the Calcaterra device permits the release of the brake without releasing the safety device, the idea being to prevent the accidental running away of a car, when the brake is released, thus eliminating much emergency brake trouble by holding the clutch neutral until it is purposely thrown into low gear position by depression of the pedal lever, whereby the safety device is automatically restored ready to be again operated when the brake is applied. Also it permits the car to be manually moved without being opposed by the brake. Stop means holding the device always in position to be operated.

Increasing Generator Output

A good way to adjust a generator to increase the flow of the current to the battery is to tighten the adjustment of the fan belt which drives the generator. This will speed up the generator and thus increase the output. Another method is by adjusting the tension of the spring on the regulator armature. Increasing the pressure raises the charging rate and decreasing the pressure lowers it.

Pure Water

Even a novice knows that radiators, piping, jackets, etc., are injured and made inefficient through incrustations resulting from mineral substances inherent in all of nature's aqua pura products, save, perhaps, rain water. The only safe thing to use, therefore, is distilled water.

Sticking Valves

Tire valves which have stuck and from which the top has been sheared off or which cannot be handled with the tire tool in the ordinary way, may be removed as follows: Use a small three-cornered file, which is driven down to the center of the valve core with a hammer, then using the file as a handle to unscrew the valve.

Combinations of Cards

The accepted formula used to determine in how many ways any number of playing cards may be arranged is as follows: Multiply together all the numbers used in counting the things; thus, the number of ways that ten cards can be arranged is 1x2x3x4x5x6x7x8x9x10 or 3,628,800.

Useless Logic

A rose is a blind, a blind is a shade, a shade is a shadow, a shadow's a ghost, a ghost is a shade, a shade is a color, a color is paint and paint is rouge. Therefore, by Euclid, axiom one, rouge must be a rose. And, curiously enough, it is true.—Yale Record.

CIDER VINEGAR
Chemist at Ohio Experiment Station Gives Wholesome Advice.
To make good cider vinegar, pure cider from clean, ripe apples is kept at a warm temperature under sanitary conditions, according to C. J. Schollenberger, assistant chemist Ohio Experiment station.
"Fresh cider is plentifully seeded with yeasts and a cetic acid bacteria, which at a temperature of 65 to 75 degrees and in containers admitting air, will transform the cider into vinegar. Altho the yeast can change the sugars to alcohol without air, the gas must be allowed to escape. From two to six weeks is required for this fermentation. When it is complete, the cider ceases to foam, and should be poured or siphoned off to clear of dregs and be placed in a clean barrel only partly filled and admitting air freely thru a screened bung hole. Old barrels must be thoroughly cleaned and scalded to serve a good product.
"Adding a quart or two of first class cider vinegar with a little active "mother" from the surface hastens the process. However, the acetic acid bacteria present in the cider multiply rapidly under favorable temperature and in the presence of air and soon form a whitish film over the surface. On no account should this film be disturbed for, should it sink to the bottom of the container, the bacteria will be shut off from the oxygen of the air and will use up the acetic acid already formed."

Indian Claims They Are Members of Extinct Tribe.
Kelso, Wash.—The tale of "tall gorilla men," or, as some called them, the "ape men," who were credited with having attacked a party of trappers in the mountains here recently, is a myth, two forest rangers declared. These rangers, J. H. Huffman and W. M. Welch, who investigated the stories brought back by the trappers, said that the stones that had been reported to have been thrown at a cabin were hurled by human hands.
While awaiting reports from parties who have gone to the vicinity of Spirit Lake on Mount St. Helens, in quest of verification of a story told by trappers that they encountered a band of "ape men" there, residents were interested in statements attributed to George Totsgil, of the Clallam Indian tribe, that the "ape men" are members of a tribe of Indians known as the Seeahltik tribe.
The trappers reported their cabin was bombarded by the "ape men" in the night. Totsgil was quoted as saying that members of the Seeahltik tribe are huge in stature and hairy like beasts. These Indians, he said, talk the Clallam language and are adept in imitating the sounds of birds.
"The Seeahltiks were last heard of by the Clallam Indians about 15 years ago and it was believed by the present Indians that they had become extinct," said Totsgil. "The Seeahltiks made their home in the heart of the wilderness on Vancouver Island and on the Olympic range."
"The Seeahltiks are seven to eight feet tall with hairy bodies, like bears. They are great hypnotists and also have a gift of ventriloquism, throwing their voices great distances."
Totsgil declared that his facts have been corroborated by Henry Napoleon, Clallam tribe, who met one of the Seeahltik Indians while hunting on Vancouver Island recently. P. J. James, Lummi tribe and George Hyasman, Quinault tribe.
Although no reports have been received from several parties who left here to search for the Indians, individuals who returned from trips to the cabin of the five prospectors confirmed parts of the story of being bombarded in their cabin with rocks from "mountain devils." Rocks were found inside the cabin. No tracks were discovered, however.

Williams has been a judge at horse shows in all sections of the United States.

May Use Airships to Explore West's Deserts
London.—The suggestion was made to the world power conference by Doctor Taussig of Austria that the United States might usefully employ its new Zeppelin, the ZR-3, now being completed in Germany, in the surveying of the arid regions of the West for water-bearing soils and various ores.
Doctor Taussig explained that the airship could be used for this purpose by utilizing a new process now being perfected whereby short radio waves can be sent out continuously. If these waves are reflected from the ground under survey, he said, it will be an indication of the presence of water and ores.

Snakes Commit Suicide, U. S. Pamphlet Declares
Washington.—Skeptics may smile at the statement, but it is authoritative. Snakes commit suicide. The fact was so impressed upon biologists making a study of reptilian life at the Department of Agriculture that their pamphlet on poisonous serpents, recently issued, contains data on the subject.
Rattlesnakes, according to the bureau of biological survey, are susceptible to their own poison. When severely injured, or infuriated and unable to wreak vengeance on their tormentor, they bite themselves and die as a result.

THE GROUND GONE OVER OFTEN
The ground gone over often! That's the way I hear the farmer in his wisdom say—
The old practical, hardheaded farmer takes life only by the soil and sows.
He peeps at his sowing and a peep at that,
And then a lot of thinking 'neath his hat,
And patient tending—and so he goes,
Contented in his own life's work he follows.

He goes and one over often! Work it well;
The clouds will come. There is no secret sowing
Of reaping harvest by some magic spell—
Toil, and the patient waiting is the thing
Respects how promptly in a well-worked field,
Show in the growing crop and in the yield
And where few weeds are there the grain does best—
The sun and rain—and faith—will do the rest.

The ground gone over often! That must be
The way souls, too, are made at last to see
Light on the vast horizon, dreams on the hills,
And feel that ecstasy that only thrills
And mundane beings when in conscious right
To plow and dig and toil our way in light,
Lusting the weedy darkness from the way
Of human growth, to count the loftier day!

Dower Rights.

The question in the case of Irvin F. Snyder, assignee, against J. E. Renick is an appeal from the common pleas court to the judgment of the probate court in which Judge Adkins held that Florence S. Renick, his wife, is entitled to dower on the gross amount of the sale of the real estate to be paid out of the surplus. The Second National bank, thru its attorney, Judge Dresbach, claims that she is entitled only to dower calculated on the surplus after payment of preferred claims. Milt Morris represents Florence S. Renick.

CLAIMS DISCOVERY WILL PREVENT TUBERCULOSIS

Assistant Director of Pasteur Institute Says Experiments Have Been Successful.

Paris.—Doctor Calmette, assistant director of the Pasteur Institute, announces the successful inoculation of young animals against tuberculosis in a series of experiments, the result of more than thirty years' work. The process is vaccination by living cultures of tuberculosis, the bacilli having been artificially inoculated.

"Attenuation" is produced by cultivating bacilli in uninterrupted series in cow bile. After thirteen years' culture in this manner the bacilli became absolutely inoffensive, but retained its anti-toxin powers in the bodies into which it was injected.

Doctor Calmette first obtained his harmless tuberculosis bacilli in 1921, and began vaccinations. The first experiments were on calves produced by tubercular cows. In every case when vaccination took place within the first fifteen days the calves remained perfectly healthy, although they were continually with tubercular animals. Afterward experiments on children showed complete success. Two hundred and seventeen babies have been vaccinated and are perfectly healthy.

First Dollar Makes Three Trips Home in 35 Years

Danville, Ill.—Forty-two years ago M. C. Miller, former local man, earned his first dollar here. He marked his initials on the coin, which was issued in 1882, the year of his birth. Later he parted with the silver piece while at a circus in Bristol, Va. In the 35 intervening years the coin came back to Miller's hands three times, according to statements made in a letter to Miller's friends here.

Thirteen years after the first parting the coin was given to him in Danville in payment of car fare on the city car of which he was a conductor. A short time later he lost the dollar. Some time ago a tourist buying gasoline in Indian River City, Fla., where Miller is now located, presented him the dollar for the third time. The coin evidently has had an easy experience, for it is well preserved and nearly as bright as it was at the time of its birth, in 1882.

SWEDEN CARES FOR WAYWARD CHILDREN

New Law Requires State Be Given Their Custody.

Stockholm.—Compulsory removal of wayward or depraved children from their homes into public custody, and subsequent supervision up to the age of eighteen, is provided for in a new law for the care of children which has just been passed by the riksdag.

The law further provides for public care of children who are found to be exposed to undesirable influence and in danger of becoming depraved.

Children removed from their homes by government inspectors and matrons in compliance with this law are placed in government institutions, or in good private homes in the country, where they receive expert training and grow up in healthful surroundings.

Social service of a similar sort has been carried on in the cities of Sweden, especially Stockholm, for many years by municipal and state boards, who place the children in desirable homes far out in the country, and pay an annual compensation to these homes. In many cases a strong bond of affection grows up between these waifs of the slums and their foster parents, which culminates in legal adoption.

Under the new law every city and parish will have a special board for the care of children, including local pastors and teachers as permanent members, while inspectors will travel all over the country for the purpose of observing and controlling individual development. Thousands of country homes receive the poor children of the city as guests during the summer and send them back to their homes with cheeks round and rosy.

Nation-wide and energetic philanthropic work also is carried on by the Swedish society "Save the Children," the campaign culminating in an annual Children's day, when large amounts are raised to provide summer vacations in children's colonies by the seaside, and in some cases on islands specially reserved.

Philippines in Quake Belt, Scientist Warns

Manila.—That Manila may at almost any time be visited by an earthquake such as destroyed Yokohama last September is the warning given by Father Roque Ruano, professor of physics and engineering in the University of Santo Tomas, who has just returned from a visit in Japan, where he studied the effect of earthquakes in that country.

"The Philippines lie in the same seismic zone as does the earthquake region of Japan, and conditions in Manila are analogous in many respects to those found in Yokohama," said Father Ruano. "The same subsoil that is found in Yokohama is found here and building construction is practically identical."

The professor recommends that a committee of geologists and scientists study the earthquake regions of the Philippines and make a report in order to impress upon the people the necessity of preparing for a severe quake at any time.

Sing Sing Has Largest Roster in Its History

New York.—Warden Lewis E. Lawes is about ready to hang the "S. R. O." sign on the Sing Sing door. With 1,447 state guests occupying these quarters, said to be the most choice of all the country's prisons, room is left for but a few more. It is the largest roster the penitentiary has had in eight years.

The crowded condition will not affect the persons now under Mr. Lawes' supervision, but it will be hard on the offenders who are sentenced to Sing Sing from now on, for the trip will be continued from the Ossining establishment to the less popular Clinton prison at Dannemora, where privileges are fewer, visitors rare and discipline comparatively severe.

One Family Owned Land in Quebec Since 1629

Quebec, Canada.—The Arts, Science and Letters society recently sent a questionnaire to the various parishes of Quebec and Montmorency, seeking information about old families. The results received were quite interesting. One family, that of Ismael Belard, remained on the same land at Charlesbourg since 1629; the family of Hector Laliberte of St. Jean, Island of Orleans, is the largest in Montmorency county, consisting of 20 children, all living. Joseph Gagnon of St. Pierre, Island of Orleans, has the largest number of living descendants with 210. Special diplomas will be forwarded to these families by the society.

VALUE OF WORK

True Happiness Can Only Be Found When Man Is Employed.

It is well to bear in mind that one of the greatest sources of human happiness is work. And this is the truth that could be more widely learned to advantage.

Too many follow the rule that the more work they can avoid the greater will be their happiness.

There is no true happiness in an idle life. Waste of time is a form of thriftlessness that is as destructive of rightful pleasure as waste of money or waste of health.

Work alone brings happiness, because work is creative and upbuilding. All the instincts of the human race which have been responsible for humanity's development have found their fulfillment only in work.

In every realm of man's activities, whether it be spiritual, mental or physical, human experience has shown that progress alone has come thru work.

This does not mean that there is no rightful place in life for play, or that diversion is not in accordance with good thrift. It is a matter of common sense, that life cannot be made up entirely of labor. There would be little if any progress in a material way under such a condition, and, in the finer things of life, there would be absence of all development.

You cannot transform a man into a machine and get human results. But, within the average routine of life, work brings the most satisfying happiness—work that is right, upbuilding and helpful.

Do not allow an ambition for idleness to spring up in your heart. Wasting time, never, under any circumstances, can bring lasting joy. It is not dissimilar to every other unthrifty practice.

Happiness thru work is one of the fundamentals that can be continually counted on. It is a splendid type of true, constructive thrift.

On the Wrong Scent.

Half the world is on the wrong scent in the pursuit of happiness. They think it consists in having and getting, and in being served by others. It consists in giving and in serving others.—Drummond.

EDITOR IN ERROR.

The versatile editor of the Emporia Gazette, who is best known as the querist who wanted to know "What's the matter with Kansas?" in his modest and unassuming way, gratuitously offers President Coolidge some advice. As Mr. White sees it, the president "should lay aside his knitting and listen to what people out west are saying about him."

William Allen feels that instead of staying on the job and striving to do what conscience and duty require, the chief executive should get out and shake hands with the agriculturists of the west, kiss the babes and swap stores. He says:

"We hear some of his friends are advising him to make a front-parlor campaign. Well, he will never be elected by the White House butler vote. He is the Republican candidate, an honest man, but a lot of farmers want him here so that they can thump him in the ribs and look into his mouth for themselves."

Such practices belong to the past, a crude past. For one thing, the lamentable death of President Harding taught the country a lesson that it long had disregarded. It balks at further possible major sacrifice.

There no longer exists a reason why the chief servant of the people should waste his time and endanger his health by appearing as the piece de resistance at barbecues and popular rallies. It may be an agreeable experience to thump president in the ribs and look in his mouth, but the country and the president may be better served by encouragement to an adherence of duty.

The president has much to do. He takes his position seriously. He is willing to give his entire time and best efforts to the demands of his high office. The public will respect this devotion to duty. Even the adverse opinion of the author of "Henry and Me" scarcely will wean it away from this view.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Balance Is Basis For All Spangleland Feats

It all begins with balance under the big top—wire dancing, riding with a pulley ring "mechanic" around the bell on the wire, stepping to measures of the big show band, has it. And in the huge Sells-Floto wild animal arenas, where American and the Sells-Floto circus coming to Circleville Friday, August 29, one often sees stags of the air, the rings, the grizzlies, polar bears, pumas and steel arenas practicing ballet steps in the padroom before entrance into the big show displays. Always they seek to assure themselves that they are on razor edge as to their sense of equipoise. It is the rudimental that none must neglect. The master of balance under the big top.

GAVE SCANT HEED TO SACRED RITES

Discourtesy of Foreigners in Saint Sophia.

I was in St. Sophia on the night of Al Kadr, the ceremony in commemoration of the revelation of the Koran to Mahommed. That night the caliph (up to a year and a half ago, the sultan) comes to St. Sophia as the spiritual head of Islam, writes Nathaniel Peffer in Asia Magazine. He comes attended by his retinue, but he worships only as one of the people, seated like them on the matted floor. Row on row they stretch back through the vast pillared hall almost bare in its simplicity and perhaps therefore the more impressive. There are thousands, a memorable picture in mass alone. And as the muezzins, grouped on daises in various parts of the mosque, chant the service in the high, carrying quaver peculiar to the muezzins, the mass on the floor bends, touches heads to the ground, rises and bends again with what has in it something of an elemental sweep as one looks down on it from above. The effect is that of an enormous field of corn yielding to gusts of wind, but the setting and the atmosphere give it a solemnity above the natural and material.

Despite the setting in St. Sophia, the sacredness of the ceremony and the presence of the caliph, foreigners are admitted on cards from their embassies and given places in the balcony just under the high mosque dome. On this occasion I was one of those foreigners. And while the rites were in progress I saw foreigners clambering up and down over the balcony railing, chattering in loud voices, promenading back and forth and nailing each other across intervals of three or four yards. Electric lights just under the balcony rail impeded their vision. They leaned over and turned the lights out. "How much longer do we have to listen to this yowling!" exclaimed a very English young English officer to a group around him and in full hearing of many others. They got up in groups, went out, came back and went out again. They would have conducted themselves in exactly the same way at a dull football or baseball game.

I remembered the stories on which I grew up, tales so vivid of occidentals being quartered if found in a mosque, that even now it seemed something of an adventure for me to walk into a mosque in Stamboul, though the only notice taken of me was an offer to conduct me about. Fanaticism; Bigotry! Where? I knew, of course, that Stamboul was not all of Turkey, nor St. Sophia precisely like other mosques. I admit the internationalized atmosphere. But I imagined St. Patrick's in New York at Christmas eve mass, St. Thomas of Trinity on Easter morning or an uptown New York synagogue on Yom Kippur. I imagined Chinese, Hindus and Turks being admitted to the balconies. I imagined them—so far as it is possible to imagine that of orientals—acting as I saw the foreigners act in St. Sophia. Then I tried to imagine what would happen to them!

The Old Cry.

It doesn't make any difference what happens, somebody is bound to arise to whisper that it is crooked. We overheard this man talking on a street car yesterday. There's nothing the turban family enjoys better than being suspicious of somebody or something.—Detroit Free Press.

His Reason

"I'm fidgeting on moving away," said Lafe Layzenberry of Boogie Holler. "I aim to load the folks into the waggin, pour a gourdful of water on the fire, call the dogs and light out for Oklahoma."

"What do you want to go to Oklahoma for special?" asked an acquaintance.

"Well, I'll just tell you: I've used up all the credit I had yurabouts and borried till I can't borry nuth'n more, and over there I don't know nobody and nobody don't know me, so I aim to start all over ag'in."—Kansas City Star.

Knew the Owner

There was nothing the professor disliked so much as to see the ignorant public get false information—especially on the subject of ornithology. So when he observed that an incorrect scientific name had been attached to a cage of birds at the park zoo, he summoned the attendant.

"Don't you know that these birds do not belong to the family Paridae?" he asked.

"Sure, I do," replied the attendant. "The zoo bought 'em last week."

Baby Elephant as Pet

Wanting to give a more substantial wedding present than furniture or cut glass, Bernard Rube of Newark, N. J., gave his daughter, Elsie, when she was married to Carl Strohm, a baby elephant. He told his daughter, as she sailed for a honeymoon trip to Europe, that the animal, besides being a pet, is a good investment, for it could always be sold for more than it cost; and as the elephant lives for several hundred years it will be in the family for some generations.

Source of Mental Health

In society you will not find health, but in Nature. You must converse much with the field and woods if you would imbibe such health into your mind and spirit as you covet for your body. Society is always diseased, and the best is the sickest. There is no scent in it so wholesome as that of the pines, nor any fragrance so penetrating and restorative as that of everlasting in high pastures. Without that our feet at least stood in the midst of Nature, all our faces would be pale and livid.—Thoreau.

Triangular Trade Route

The name "Triangular Trade route" was applied to the route from the United States to the West Indies; from the West Indies to Europe; and from Europe to the United States. The mainland shipped food and lumber to the West Indies; the West Indies shipped sugar products to Europe; and Europe shipped manufactures to the American mainland, thus closing the transaction.

Important to Store Eggs in Dry Place

Gather and Market Often to Obtain Top Prices.

Other things being equal, newly-harvested hen-fruit is one of the most perfect foods in the world. From the moment it is laid by a healthy hen in a clean and sanitary environment it is subject to deleterious influences. The hen is in no way responsible for these, but her owner is. Dirt, heat, excessive dryness or a damp environment are all inimical to quality in fresh eggs. Dirt disfigures the shell and so lessens its value to buyers; it also contracts mold, germs and injurious bacteria which break down quality and nutritive value and vitiate flavor. Hence the importance of placing eggs in a cool, dry, pure atmosphere, and of gathering and marketing them often, or of cold-storing them, which is only another way of maintaining their quality. To eat hen-fruit at its best is to do so when it is yet very young from the nest. When eggs are subjected to damp and moisture, the albuminous protective covering dissolves, admitting decomposing bacteria into the shell, through the pores, which causes rapid spoilage. Heat tends to break down the "whites," rendering the egg "weak" and watery; on the yolks the effect is to make them dark and "heavy." Eggs of this character are graded as "bakers," which command reduced prices. An excessively dry atmosphere causes rapid evaporation, or "shrunken" eggs. A careful consideration of these premises will suggest their own remedies. Clean nests protected from the sun and wind, healthy laying hens and wholesome feeding are the fundamental things to provide for good performance flocks. When the industrious hen has functioned and delivered her product, it is "up to" her owners to take the necessary measures that will insure a good price to the poultryman and fine eating quality to the ultimate consumer.

Manure Is Too Valuable to Be Wasted in Yards

No matter how rich a soil may be, years of constant cropping with no return of organic matter will eventually wear it out. A crop rotation which includes a legume at least once in every four years must be followed if fertility is to be maintained. In addition, all crop refuse available, such as stubble, straw and manure, is necessary.

The average increase in crop yields for each ton of manure applied per acre has been found to be worth $3.31 in an Ohio experiment extending over a period of 14 years. Manure is too valuable to be wasted around the barnyards. When it is thrown from the stable into the barnyard, it contains, on the average, 80 per cent water from cattle, and 70 per cent from horses. This water contains the major portion of the salts which give manure its fertilizing value. Expose such material to the rain and the liquid manure will soon be replaced by rain water if the manure pile is where it will drain easily.

Manure exposed from April 1 to September 30 at the New York experiment station lost 43 per cent of its value. Wherever practicable, then, a tight manure pit is a good investment. The one shown here is on the farm of Emil Anderson, Branch county, Mich. Besides conserving the manure, it keeps the barnyard in a much cleaner condition and in case contagious diseases develop, proper sanitary methods are not so expensive.

FARM FACTS

The best time to fix the farm machinery is before it needs repairs.

During summer the gardener needs to cultivate his pep along with his pepper.

The average duckling is ready for market between ten and twelve weeks of age at which time individuals of the Pekin variety should weigh between five and six pounds.

There is absolutely no danger spraying hogs or brood sows while they are pregnant. Spray brood sows with crude oil after they have been put in a thoroughly clean farrowing pen. This prevents the pigs from getting lice from their mother.

The time to set trees and shrubs is in early spring, as early as the ground is fit to work. They may be set up to the first of June if kept dormant, but it is just as well to remember that the later the planting the less likely the success, within certain limits.

Boys and girls have often got started with good flocks of sheep by raising such orphan lambs on cow's milk. As ewe's milk is richer than even Jersey milk, there is no need to dilute cow's milk for feeding, though a little lime water is sometimes added to prevent indigestion.

The old wood may be cut from the aspenberries and blackberries, and if new canes are making a very strong growth, they may be cut back, say to three feet. In the case of red raspberries, it is unnecessary to cut them back, and experience has proved that it is a better practice to keep back the black caps and blackberries.

Cleora Is Not Seeking Those "Good Matches"

By MILDRED GOODRIDGE

(© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

"WHAT in the world is Cleora Malden up to now, I wonder? From her mysterious secrecy, with any other girl I would suspect a trust with some romantic lover."

"That doesn't fit Cleora at all," dissented May Delmar.

Once her father had hinted to his motherless daughter that her girl friends were one after the other making what he called "good matches," Cleora had shaken her head soberly at this allusion.

"Father, we do not need wealth to be happy," she declared. "I am going to love you and you only as long as you are here to care for."

He had seen her start out that morning with a full basket. The judge asked no questions, but knew that some worthy family was on her list.

Judge Malden opened his eyes to their widest when, at dusk that evening, the automobile drove into the yard, and he looked it over and then turned a critical, challenging glance upon his daughter.

"I'm tired and hungry," announced Cleora, as she drove the machine to the garage. "I've been working hard all day long."

"You look it," observed the judge. "What have you been doing with the machine—moving a house?"

"Pretty nearly," smiled Cleora. "Now don't get grumpy, father. When you hear my story you will be as interested and sympathetic as myself."

"Well, let us hear what you have been up to this time," he suggested. "There's a half-blind old man and his feeble wife, the Maitlands, over near Elberston," said Cleora.

"Yes, I've heard of them. Bought some property from that scoundrel, Ringold, who has put a cloud on the title of one-half the land I own in the township," observed the judge.

"Their son, Dr. Paul Maitland, bought it," corrected Cleora. "It seems he knew before he went away that he had been swindled by Mr. Ringold, just as you were, but he never dreamed that the old folks would be disturbed until his return. About a week ago, however, the real owner of the land served notice on the old people to vacate."

"I'd like to catch hold of that Ringold!" remarked the judge, an old grievance vividly revived. "It isn't what he beat me out of in real money but the complications he made that have obscured the title to my land so I can't legally sell it until the records are cleaned up."

"From what old Mr. and Mrs. Maitland say," spoke Cleora, "their son has been trying to find Mr. Ringold."

The judge did not try to deter Cleora from continuing her visits to the old people. He looked askance, however, when his daughter became enthusiastic in telling what a fine portrait she had seen of the absent doctor and what a loyal, liberal son he had been to his aged parents.

"I suppose Doctor Maitland is pretty poor," remarked the judge guardedly. "Maybe his investment in that house took all he had in the world."

"I don't know—I hope not," replied Cleora.

The judge was not at all crafty, but he brought it around so that young Sidney Talcott, who was heir presumptive to quite an estate and always a devoted follower of Cleora, came once more into the lists.

It was a fair moonlit evening when young Talcott mustered up courage to propose to Cleora. She treated him as if she was a kindly sister, told him he had better go back to the fiancée he had quarreled with and sent him away with a lot of good advice.

After he had gone Cleora strolled across the verdant space aligning the home grounds. A man's figure came swiftly across her path. He halted to lift his hat courteously and inquire:

"Can you direct me to the home of Judge Malden?"

"It is right at hand," explained Cleora, and she at once identified the original of the picture Mr. and Mrs. Maitland had showed her of their son.

"I wish to see the judge," explained the stranger. "Perhaps—" he paused, a quick flicker came into his eyes.

"I am his daughter," said Cleora.

His hand reached out to clasp her own. There came into his face an eager, glad expression. She could feel his pulses heighten.

"I cannot find words to thank you"—his voice was husky and tremulous. "You have done so much for my father and mother. And I—it is pleasant to know that I may partly repay your goodness. I have some glad news for your father."

Good news, indeed! The young doctor had run down the swindler, Ringold. He had not only forced what restitution could be made as to his own property, but had compelled the execution of documents that would clear up the clouded titles on the judge's real estate.

"An admirable young man!" announced the judge as their visitor left them.

And at the end of a week old Mrs. Maitland kissed the noble girl tenderly, as she said:

"You were kind to me as if I were of your closest kin when we were in trouble. Now that the sunshine has come, it seems brightest because you are to become my own real daughter."

Not Prehistoric

Some years ago an expert announced the discovery of clear evidence of prehistoric mural paintings in a cave on the Cornish coast, and a French authority on Neolithic art, which appears to have flourished about 20,000 years ago, accepted them as genuine. However, a local fisherman appeared on the scene and confessed that he was the artist. He had, he explained, cleaned his brush on the walls of the cave after painting his boat.

Date of Creation Unknown

Many theologians have occupied themselves with the problem of the actual date of creation. Bishop Ussher computed the year at 4004 B. C. A universal history, a work of 42 volumes, published in London in 1779, devotes some space to the fixing of the actual time. It discusses the probability of its being March 21, 4004 B. C., and September 21, 4004 B. C., and inclines toward the latter date.

POWHATAN'S SKELETONS UNCOVERED, IS BELIEF

Smithsonian Institution to Investigate Recent Discoveries That Promise to Be Important.

Washington.—The bureau of American ethnology of the Smithsonian institution will investigate in the near future what may prove to be two of the most important discoveries yet made of relics of the Indian tribes who roamed over the site of Washington at the time the first white man visited this section.

Both discoveries were accidental. The first was made by a farmer near Shadysburg, Va., while plowing a field near Shady creek. He uncovered seven skeletons. At first he did not attach especial significance to this, because the field was near the battle ground of Cedar creek, in the Civil war, and it was assumed that the skeletons were those of slain soldiers. A famous Indian battle, however, was fought on nearly the same site, and further investigations showed that the bodies had been buried with ceremonies typical of the early Indian tribes.

Each body had been drawn up in a cramped position and thrust into the grave. Beside each skull was a jar, elaborately decorated with primeval religious symbols, which once had been filled with food to sustain the ghost in his cold passage between two worlds.

The second find was much larger and will be investigated first. The recent flood waters of the Shenandoah unearthed what is believed to have been an old Indian cemetery. The center grave, around which the others seemed to be grouped, contained one skeleton measuring seven and a half feet.

Europe Again Interested In London Dancing Girls

Danzig.—English dancing girls, who disappeared from the stages of continental Europe in August, 1914, have begun to return to their former fields of activity and have even invaded Russia, where they were always popular prior to the war.

Throughout Europe before the war, wherever there were variety theaters or music halls, there were English dancing girls, known for their sprightly dancing, combined with singing stunts. Even in old St. Petersburg and Moscow, the home of the Russian ballet, the dancing girls from London were always well received.

This spring a troupe has been touring the Scandinavian cities and the Baltic states and from Danzig goes on to Leningrad, where there have been no English performers since the Soviets came into power. Later the dancers will visit Warsaw, Bucharest, Budapest, Vienna and numerous other cities. Several other troupes from London also took the road this spring and have been appearing in Rotterdam, Stockholm, Copenhagen, Berlin and other northern cities.

Shaves and Monocles Are Taboo in Germany

Berlin.—Fashion's decree for German men this summer condemns the smooth-shaven face so much in vogue since the war, when the upturned kaiser mustaches went out.

Now the Berliner of mode must wear the little military toothbrush bunch of hair on his upper lip, and also abandon the monocle. With the single eyeglass the horn-rimmed spectacle is banned, and gentlemen are supposed to wear the conventional and unobtrusive gold or rimless glasses.

They also are warned to wear four-in-hand ties fully exposed and not to tuck them in between the second and third shirt buttons as of old. The colored silk handkerchief is taboo and white linen is required. But with these conformities to the conservative fashions of the West comes a vogue among the ultra set for high-heeled shoes of the old Cuban style.

German Seeress Predicts Death of Industrialists

Munich.—Elsbeth Ebertin claims to know what is destined to happen in Germany in 1924-1927. Her prediction for this spring, made in February, included failure of banks, and death of several "very rich personalities belonging to the financial world," and the revelation of fraud on a large scale.

The deaths of Stinnes and Helfferich and the failure of the Neufville bank are pointed to by Frau Ebertin's friends as evidence of her ability to foresee the future.

Grapefruit Full of Bills

East Rochester, N. H.—The Rev. Levi F. Cook, pastor of the Free Baptist church, and a brother of Alonzo Cook, state auditor of Massachusetts, who has been seriously ill, has received a novel gift from members of his congregation. One of the parish stopped at the Cook home the other day and left a grapefruit, elaborately decorated with blue ribbon. The interior had been removed and replaced by a large roll of bills.

Catches Prize Fish

Rhinelander, Wis.—Miss Emma H. Hanson, of Chicago, caught the prize fish of the season in this vicinity when she hooked a muskellonge weighing 46½ pounds, measuring 4 feet 6 inches in length, in Squirrel Lake. It was necessary to shoot the fish before it could be safely landed.

DEFECTIVE EYES MEAN HUGE LOSS

Poor Vision of School Pupils Costs Taxpayers Annually $130,000,000.

New York.—Defective eyesight in public schools is costing the taxpayers of the nation at least $130,000,000 annually, it is asserted by the Eyesight Conservation Council of America, which in a statement sent to directors of summer schools throughout the country, urges organized conservation of vision as a social and economic need.

Warning that poor eyesight is a prolific source of retardation, the council makes public the results of investigations showing that a large proportion of backward children have visual defects.

Accompanying the statement is a report revealing that heavy moral and financial losses arise from this evil. Approximately 25 per cent of all school children in the United States, the council finds, are retarded in their studies and fully one-third of this retardation is conservatively estimated as due to defective vision.

If this is a correct estimate there are at least 2,000,000 school children in the United States one or more years behind in their studies because of defective vision, says the council's report, continuing:

"According to the United States bureau of education the cost of public elementary and secondary education for the entire United States averaged in 1920 $64.16 per pupil per year. If each one of the 6,000,000 retarded children in the United States, as estimated, was forced to drop back only one year the cost would be $390,000,000.

"The public school system spends this amount each year in order that these children may have one or more years longer to complete their education. At least one-third of this amount, or $130,000,000, is lost annually because the eyesight of the children is neglected.

"This estimated cost is low, for the average backward pupil is retarded more than one year. Studies made in two cities of 5,815 retarded pupils show a total of 12,970 school years lost, making an average much in excess of two years for each retarded pupil.

"Furthermore, the estimate does not represent the total loss to the child and to the state when consideration is given to the future inefficiency, lowered earning power and less competent service of the individual as an economic unit of society."

Leads to Other Troubles.

John J. Tigert, United States commissioner of education and a member of the board of counselors of the eyesight council, is quoted as asserting, after a careful review of the situation, that "one of the greatest disturbing factors in measuring the effects of defective vision upon retardation is the fact that faulty eyesight invariably leads to other troubles, and the effect of these is not attributed to defective vision."

The council's statement to summer-school directors, signed by Guy A. Henry of New York, general director, says that "a large percentage of the pupils attending summer schools are obliged to do so merely because they have not kept up with their classes."

In the report disclosing waste the relation between sound vision and school progress is indicated. "Defective vision is responsible for much of the retardation in school progress which exists in the educational institutions of the country," says the report.

"Investigations of 23,607 public school children with defective vision show that of this group an average of 67 per cent were retarded in their studies one or more years. This is almost three times as high as the retardation of groups when not classified according to eyesight. In another group of 32,050 pupils of which retardation investigations were made without segregating or giving consideration to condition of eyes, the proportion of those retarded in their studies averaged 24 per cent."

Large Number Backward.

Of 7,319 school children found with defective vision in the public school eye clinic of one of our large cities 72 per cent were backward in their studies. An examination of 2,185 rural school children in a midwestern state disclosed that of those retarded nearly 60 per cent had visual defects, according to the council.

"The correction of visual defects results in a marked improvement in school progress," the report continues. "The records of 20,000 cases sent to a public school eye clinic for correction of refractive errors show that from 20 to 70 per cent of the children were classified as backward, mentally deficient, stupid or habitually left back. The careful follow-up system proved that after their defective vision had been corrected 70 to 80 per cent of these children progressed and took their place in the class with the normal average child. The reason the remaining 20 to 30 per cent did not progress was because their retardation was due to causes other than defective vision.

"The proportion of retardation in another group, all with visual defects, was found to be $5.4 per cent. One year later, after the defective eyes had been corrected by glasses, only 17 per cent of these corrected children were found to be backward in their studies.
